

TIP OF THE WEEK

July 10, 2007

Tyler is a young fellow who went to high school with our daughter, Beth. He is a gifted athlete but their high school was so small that they didn't have a track team. When he went to Emory University, he decided to try out for their team. And as a freshman who had never run track before, Tyler won two golds and a silver at the championship meet at season end. Turns out that Tyler is very fast. I asked him what his most difficult event was and he said, "The 4 by 100 relay. I said, "So why is it so difficult?" He answered, "The hard part is passing the baton because teamwork takes a lot of practice."

So here's the tip. Teamwork does take a lot practice, but the more you do it, the less chance you have of dropping the baton.

Good luck. Work ON your business. Stay in touch.
